PUBLISHER'S NOTE

Language fails me when I think of asking the indulgence of the expectant readers, and the learned translator and commentator of this work, to pardon the unpardonable delay in bringing out this book.

Unusual delays are always ascribable to unusual causes. I am not a publisher either by choice, or by profession. The responsibility has been forced upon me by circumstances, and nobody realises more severely and sorely than I do how very unfitted I am for the discharge of the duties expected of a publisher.

My explanation, good, bad, or indifferent, is that in March 1929 I accepted a Judgeship in the High Court at Bikaner, Rajputana, and it was only during the intervals of leisure that I could attend to the revision and proof passing of Niyamsara. I resigned the post on the 30th September 1930, returned to Lucknow in October, and in November Dr. Sir Moti Sagar, Kt., LL.D., who had been my intimate friend since early boyhood, suddenly died at Lahore, and having been invited to take up the legal work pending in his office I felt compelled to accept the task. The extremely complicated and highly responsible nature of the work left me little time for anything else. The holidays in this month have enabled me to return to Ajitashram and to pen this note.

For such mistakes, inaccuracies and omissions, also, as may have escaped detection I have to crave the indulgence of the generous readers, and the author.

I cannot conclude this note without placing on record my gratitude to Jaina Dharma Bhushan Brahmachari Sital Prasada Ji, who has helped me constantly with advice, suggestions, and general assistance, in all details, great or small, relating to the publication of this, the 9th volume of the Sacred Books of the Jains.

INTRODUCTION

Niyamsara is one of the most renowned Adhyatmic works of Shri Kund Kunda Acharya. He was the preceptor of Shri Uma Swami, the renowned author of Shri Tatwartha Dhiḡama Sutra.

The Sanskrit commentary of Niyamsara was written by Shri Padma Prabha Maladhari Deva, who appears to have lived about 1000 A. D. He was preceded by Shri Amrit Chandra Acharya, who wrote Sanskrit commentaries on Panchastikaya Pravachansara and Samayasara the great monumental works on Jaina metaphysics by Shri Kund Kunda Acharya. Padma Prabha has frequently quoted and referred to some of the verses of Amrit Chandra in his commentary on Niyamsara.

In 1912 a lucid Commentary with learned explanatory notes was written in Hindi by Jaina Dharma Bhushan Brahmachari Sital Prasadaji. No other Commentary in Hindi is available.

In 1928, the said Brahmachariji at the request of the local Jains passed the rainy season at Rohtak and stayed there from the 30th June to the 12th November. It was through his kind persuasion and encouragement, that the English translation of this work was undertaken and finished by me. The translation and commentaries were written under direct and immediate supervision of Brahmachariji.

The treatise is named Niyamsara, because it deals with the path of liberation, which is Right Belief, Right knowledge and Right Conduct, the three jewels of faith combined. The word Niyama literally means, "rule or law," and Sira means "the right." Niyamsara thus signifies the Right Rule, i. e., the true and indispensable law for the attainment of liberation.

The sole object and the whole gist of this treatise is to show that the all pure, all-conscious, all blissful and self absorbed soul alone is the Siddha, a perfect soul. If a soul is in bondage with karmic matter, i. e., if it has any connection, whatsoever, with the Non Soul, it is imperfect, under delusion. It is imperfection or delusion which is accountable for the continuance of transmigrations, and experiences of pain and pleasure. In order to obtain liberation, perfection, eternal beatitude, a soul must get rid of all connection with the Non self. When this connection with the Non self is completely severed, Siddha pada, Perfection, is attained.

Right Belief, Right knowledge, and Right Conduct have been dealt with, from two points of view, the real and the practical.

The real is the only sure and direct path while the practical is an auxiliary cause to the attainment of the real. Real path of liberation is absorption in the self.

Attachment and aversion, which include all passionate thought activities, are the main cause of karmic bondage, while non attachment, or pure thought activity leads to freedom from bondage.

1. Practical Right Belief is a true and firm belief in Apta, the all accomplished, all knowing, source of all knowledge, in the Agama, the Scripture the written discourse, which first flowed from the omniscient, and in the Tattvas, the principles or categories.

The Apta must have three special characteristics —

(a) Freedom from all defects such as hunger, fear, anger, delusion, (b) Omniscience and (c) non volitional propagation of truth. Such are the Arhats, the adorable Lords, of whom the most prominent are the twenty four Tirthankaras.

Agama is the scripture composed by the highly learned and spiritually advanced saints from discourses which flowed from the Arhats. These scriptures are faultless and free from the flaw of inconsistency.

Tattvas, the principles categories or substances are seven, (1) Jiva, soul, (2) Ajiva, non soul (3) Asrava, inflow, (4) Bandha bondage, (5) Samvara, the check of inflow, (6) Nirjarā the shedding of previously bound up karmas, and (7) Moksha, liberation from all Karmic contact.

All that exists is included in one or other of the two principles, soul and non soul. While a man is alive, it is the soul in his body which perceives and knows all objects. A body without soul is incapable of perceiving or knowing anything. Material objects such as a pen, table or chair can not feel or know anything. They are unconscious or inanimate substances.

I The soul It is the only conscious substance Looked at from the real point of view even a mundane soul is pure, peaceful, all knowing and all blissful, It is potentially so From the practical point of view such a soul experiences various kinds of pain and pleasure in different conditions of life

II The Non soul It comprises the other five real and independent substances which, taken together with the soul, make up the six (Dravyas) substances

(1) (Pudgala) "matter" is the most prominent and plays a very important part in the amphitheatre of the universe The special attributes of matter substance (pudgala) are touch, taste, smell, and colour It exists either in the form of atoms or of molecules Only gross molecules are cognizable by the senses fine, electric and karmic molecules which compose the electric and the karmic bodies of all mundane souls are not cognizable by the senses

(2) Dharma Dravya "Medium of motion" is a single immaterial substance pervading throughout the whole of the universe It is essentially an auxiliary cause of motion for soul and matter

(3) Adharma Dravya "Medium of rest" is also a single immaterial substance, pervading throughout the whole universe It is also an essentially auxiliary cause of rest for soul and matter

(4) Akāśa Dravya "Space" is a single infinite immaterial substance Its function is to give place to all substances

(5) Kāla Dravya 'Time' is an immaterial substance It is an auxiliary cause of bringing about modifications in all substances

III & IV "Inflow" (asrava) and "Bondage" (Bandha) "

Every mundane soul has a karmic body, formed of karmic molecules The universe is full of karmic molecules Inflow of these molecules towards the soul, caused by its own vibratory activities, through mind, speech, and body, is called asrava When these molecules are so attracted towards the soul, they are assimilated in the existing karmic body The causes of assimilation or bondage are the soul's vibratory activities and passions This process is known as bandha (bondage) The processes of Inflow and Bondage of karmic matter go on simultaneously The main auxiliary causes of both of them are —

(a) Wrong belief (Mithyatva)

(c) Passions (Kashaya)

(d) Soul's vibratory activities (Yoga)

V Samvara "Checking of Inflow" and "Bondage of Karmic" molecules, is called Samvara (Stoppage)

The main auxiliary causes of stopping the inflow and bondage of karmic molecules are —

(a) Right belief

(b) Observance of vows

(c) Passionlessness

(d) Restraint of soul's vibratory activities

VI Nirjara "The shedding of karmas" already bound with a soul, at maturity, or prematurely, is called Nirjara. The premature shedding of karmas is caused by pure thought activities, brought about by the practice of right kind of austerities. The shedding on maturity is a natural and automatic process.

Moksha "Liberation" is freedom from all karmic matter as a result of the non-existence of the cause of bondage and the shedding off of all karmas previously bound. It is the state of a Siddha, the condition of perfection.

Continuous devotion to Apta, study of the scriptures, and meditation of the seven principles, cause the subsidence of wrong belief (mithyatva) and of the four error feeding passions (anantanubandhi kashaya) and as a consequence the real right belief which is an attribute of the soul shines forth in its true splendour. At this stage the right believer is fully convinced of the true and pure nature of his own soul and this is Real Right belief.

RIGHT KNOWLEDGE

I Practical Right knowledge is the acquisition of the detailed knowledge of all the seven principles explained above, with the help of the Jaina scriptures. This Right knowledge must be free from three main defects (a) doubt (Samashaya), (b) Perversity (Viparyaya) and (c) Indefiniteness (anadhyavasiya). It reveals the complete and precise nature of things.

II Real Right knowledge is to know the true and real nature of the soul as quite distinct from all other non soul substances.

Constant contemplation of, and unflinching devotion to, the subject matter of practical right knowledge is an auxiliary cause to the attainment of Real Right knowledge.

RIGHT CONDUCT

A right believer, who has fully realised the true and real nature of his own soul, and is bent upon getting rid of the karmic filth which is in bondage with his soul, tries to follow Right Conduct. His main object in doing so, is to be free from attachment and aversion and from all impure thought activities and to attain the condition of equanimity.

Practical right conduct consists in observing the following five vows —

|------------------|------------------------------|
| (a) Ahimsa | refraining from doing injury |
| (b) Satya | refraining from falsehood |
| (c) Asteya | refraining from theft |
| (d) Brahmacharya | Chastity purity |
| (e) Aparigraha | Non attachment |

This practical right conduct can be observed either partially or fully. Laymen observe it partially, while those who observe it fully are saints. Partial observance is merely a stepping stone to the conduct of a saint, without following which it is not possible to advance spiritually and to ultimately liberate the soul from karmic bondage.

A layman is required to follow the seven supplementary vows also as they are helpful in the proper observance of the first five.

Out of these seven, the following three are called Gunavratas (multiplicative vows) because they raise the value of the five vows multifold.

Dig Vrata, a life-long vow to limit worldly activities to fixed points in all the 10 directions, North, South East West, North east, North west, South east, South west above and below.

Desha Vrata, a vow to limit worldly activity for a fixed period "only".

Anartha Danda Vrata Taking a vow not to commit purposeless sin. It is of five kinds —

- (a) Apa Dhyana, thinking ill of others
- (b) Papodesha, Preaching evil of others
- (c) Pramada-charya Inconsiderate conduct, such as uselessly breaking the boughs of trees
- (d) Himsa dan preparing or supplying instruments of attack
- (e) Dushrutl, Reading or listening to improper literature

The remaining four are the following Shiksha Vratas or disciplinary vows, so called because they are preparatory to the discipline of an ascetic's life —

Sāmāyika — Taking a vow to devote = fixed period every day, once, twice, or three times, at sunrise, sunset and noon to the contemplation of the self for spiritual advancement

Proshadhopvāsa Taking a vow to fast on four days of the month, i. e., the two Ashtamis and the two Chaturdhis

Bhogopohoga Parimanā Taking a vow every day to limit one's enjoyment of consumable and non consumable things

Atithi Samābhaga Taking a vow to take one's food only after feeding ascetics or others, with a part of it

The following eleven stages of spiritual progress have been laid down for a layman

1 Darshana Pratimā A layman who entertains right belief, and follows the five main vows to a limited extent is classed in this stage

2 Vrata Pratimā In this stage he observes the five main vows to a limited extent (anuvratas), without transgression and follows the seven supplementary vows

3 Sāmāyika Pratimā In this stage he practises faultless contemplation regularly three times, in the morning at midday and in the evening at least for about 48 minutes every time

4 Proshadhopavāsa Pratimā In this stage, he observes a fast faultlessly, on the 8th and 14th days of the fortnight

5 Sachitta Tyāga Pratimā In this stage he does not take animate water and vegetable, etc

6 Ratnī Bhukta Tyāga Pratimā He does not take or give food or drink at night

7 Brahmacharya Pratimā He gives up sexual intercourse even with his wife.

8 Arambha Tyāga Pratimā He gives up all profession and all means of earning money and all worldly occupations

9 Parigraba Tyāga Pratimā He gives up all desire for objects of the world and abandons all property except a very few limited number of clothes and utensils

10 Anumati Tyāga Pratimā He would not even offer advice on any worldly matter

11 Uddishṭa Tyāga Pratimā In this stage he would not accept food which is prepared particularly for him. He will only accept food which is respectfully offered by a house holder at the time when he goes out for food. One following the discipline of this stage may be—

(a) Aśhullaka, who keeps a small sheet of cloth not sufficiently long to cover his whole body and a small loin cloth (langotī), and dines in a dish, or

(b) Ailaka, who wears only a small loin-cloth (langotī) and dines off his hands

They both carry a bowl of water for cleaning the body and peacock feathers brush for harmlessly removing insects

Every Jain's house holder is ordinarily required to perform the following six daily duties

1 Deva Pūja Worship of the Arhats, the adorables

2 Guru Bhakti Devotion to the gurus or preceptor saints

3 Śādhya Study of the scriptures

4 Samyama Control of the five senses and the mind. In practising Samyama, it is necessary to renounce certain objects of enjoyments with the idea of self control

5 Tapa Austerities such as meditating upon the nature of soul every morning and evening, for a fixed time

6 Dāna or Charity Giving of (a) food, (b) knowledge, (c) medicine or (d) protection

As soon as an Ailaka is able to subdue his passions, and regards himself as above passion and emotion, like an infant he discards that small langotī also, becomes a nirgrantha, a naked saint, without any possession, whatsoever, except the bowl for carrying water, for cleaning, but not bathing the body and the peacock feathers brush for carefully removing insects. He may keep scriptures as well for daily study

A saint while observing the five great vows fully and without any transmigration, has to observe the following eight rules of Conduct also —

1. Five kinds of caution. (Samiti)

- (a) Irjā Samiti Proper care in walking
- (b) Bhāṣha Samiti, proper care in speaking
- (c) Lāhṇā Samiti, proper care in eating
- (d) Adinā Nīkshepa Samiti, Proper care in lifting and placing the bowl, etc
- (e) Utsarga Samiti, proper care while attending calls of nature

11 Three kinds of Restraint (Gupti) (a) of mind, (b) of word, (c) of body

These eight rules of conduct taken together with the five vows make the thirteen rules of practical right conduct laid down for a saint

In dealing with the six essential duties from the real point of view, the author has used the word Avashyaka in its etymological sense. Avasha, means independent and Avashyaka Karma means independent action. Independent action signifies the idea that the soul of a saint in meditation, is not dependent upon any other thought activity except its own pure and real nature. This is only possible in the condition of self absorption, when a saint is free from all foreign thought activities

From the practical point of view, they may be briefly described as follows —

1 Pratikramana Repentance means the statement of the sins and transgressions committed by a saint, during the performance of his daily routine and making penance for them

■ Pratyakhyāna Renunciation means resolving to avoid particular thought activities and actions in future, which tend to disturb the performance of essential duties.

■ Stuti or Praising and

4 Vandana prostration to the worshipful saints. They are both aspects of Devotion which are practised with the object of getting rid of impure thought activities

5 Samāyika or Equanimity In practising Samāyika a saint resorts to some undisturbed solitude, and calmly and cheerfully withdraws all his thought activities, and meditates upon his own soul and its various attributes and modifications

6 Kāyotsarga Is the relinquishment of attachment to the body and all other objects associated with it

Nirvāṇa is the result brought about by the practice of self absorption, which is the combination of Real Right belief, Real Right knowledge and Real Right Conduct.

In the condition of Nirvāṇa the soul retains its own pure and real thought activities only, and enjoys its own natural and eternal bliss

I cannot conclude this introduction without first expressing my deep sense of gratitude to the late Mr J. L. Jaini, whose erudite and learned commentaries on Tattvārtha Dhigama Sutra and Gommatra have been freely utilized and referred to, as occasion demanded

1 Bowing to Vira Jina, who, by nature is the possessor of infinite and supreme knowledge and conation, I shall compose Niyama-Sāra, preached by Kevalis and the Shruta Kevalis

Commentary

In this gātha Shri Kunda Kunda Āchārya who lived in the first century of the Vikrama Era renders homage to the last of the twenty four Tirthankaras, Lord Mahavira, also called Vira, and enshrines Him in his heart for the purification of his thoughts, so that he may be able to fulfil his undertaking successfully Further the Āchārya expresses it emphatically that whatever he will write will not be his own independent teaching, but will be fully based upon the authoritative pronouncement of Kevalis and Shruta-Kevalis

Kevalis are those Omniscient Supreme souls, who still occupy a highly refined physical body, but are free from the four destructive Ghātiya Karmas, and whose "perfect" (Keval) knowledge is full, all pervasive, and independent of senses, and comprehends all at-once without effort, the whole manifested and unmanifested universe, with all its past and future modifications

Shruta-Kevalis are those saints who have obtained perfect knowledge of all the Scriptures

मगो मग्गफलंति य दुविहं जिणसासणे समक्खादं ।

मगो मोक्खउवायो तस्स फलं होइ णिव्वाणं ॥ २ ॥

मार्गो मोक्षोपायः तस्य फलं भवति निर्वाणम् ॥ २ ॥

2 In the Jaina Scriptures the Path and the Fruit of the Path are described as the two parts. The means of liberation constitute the Path, and liberation is the Fruit.

Commentary

The Path of Liberation is the combination of Right belief, Right knowledge and Right conduct,—the three jewels of Jainism. Following this path a soul reaches its ultimate goal. Nirvāṇa. Nirvāṇa is the condition of the soul when it is free from all karmic dirt and regains its own pure inherent nature. Then it is all blissful, all knowing, all powerful ever lasting having accomplished all that was to be accomplished.

3 What is in reality worth doing (is) Niyama, and that is belief, knowledge conduct. In order to avoid deflection the word Sara has been particularly affixed to it.

Commentary

The combination of Right belief, Right knowledge and Right conduct is the true Path of liberation. Then comes the fruit.

universal law for the purification of Soul and is called Niyama. The word Śāra affixed to the word Niyama emphasises its perfection. The name of the book Niyamasāra is thus literally true.

4 Niyama (is) the way to liberation, its fruit is supreme Nirvana. Each of these three, is again described

5 Belief in the Perfect Souls, the Scriptures and the Principles is Right Belief

He who is free from all defects and is possessed of all (pure) attributes is the supreme source

Commentary

In order to find out truth, one must have recourse to true scriptures. True scriptures are only those which are based upon the preachings of a Supreme being who is free from all passion and is Omniscient. All other Scriptures must necessarily be incomplete, and misleading. Truth can only be known to and published by, one who knows all that exists, with all possible modifications, past and future at one and the same time. One who has likes and dislikes, one who can curse or bless, one who can reward or punish, has limitations, is hence imperfect and cannot be Omniscient, the source of knowledge.

6 (The defects are) hunger, thirst, fear, anger, attachment, delusion, anxiety, old age, disease, death, perspiration, fatigue, pride, indulgence, surprise, sleep, birth, and restlessness

7 One free from all defects and possessed of sublime grandeur such as Omniscience is called Parmātmā (the Highest Soul) or the Perfect One. One who is not such, (is) not Parmatma

8 Words proceeding from his mouth, pure and free from the flaw of inconsistency are called Āgama (scripture). In that Āgama the principles (Tattvārtha) are enunciated

जीवा पोग्गलकाया धम्माधम्मा य काल आयासं ।

तच्चत्था इदि भण्णिदा खाणागुणपज्जण्हिं संजुत्ता ॥ ९ ॥

जीवाः पुद्गलकायाः धर्माधर्मौ च काल आकाशं ।

9 Soul, Matter, medium of motion, medium of rest, space (substances) having dimensions, and Time, together with their various attributes and modifications are said to be the principles (Tattvārtha)

Commentary

Out of the above six realities or substances called Tattvārtha, the first five occupy more than one unit of space. Time has no dimension Its innumerable particles (Kalau) are close-packed in universal space but coalesce with one another

जीवो उवओगमओ उवओगो णाणदंसणो होई ।

10 Soul is characterised by Upayoga Upayoga is towards Darsana or Jñāna Jñāna Upayoga is of two kinds, Swabhava Jñana or Vibhava Jñana

Commentary

In Panchástikāya Samaya Sāra Volume III of the Sacred Books of the Jainas Series page 15, Professor Chakravarti says that the term Upayoga is used to denote Darsana and Jñāna Darsana is perception, and Jñāna is knowledge

In Dravya Samgraha Volume I of the S B J page 9, Mr Sarat Chandra Ghoshal says that Upayoga is of two kinds being connected with Jñāna, and Darsana Upayoga is the resultant of consciousness Roughly, Upayoga may be said to be a sort of inclination which arises from consciousness This inclination is either towards Darsana or towards Jñāna

Mr J L Jaini in his Gommatsara Jiva Kanda, Volume V of S B J on page 326 translated Upayoga as conscious attentiveness or attention

The difference between Darsana and Jñāna consists in this that in the former the details are not perceived, while in the latter the details are also known

Mr Herbert Warren in his "Jainism" on page 29 says — "Before we know a thing in a detailed way there is the stage where we simply see, hear, or otherwise become conscious of it in a general way, without going into its ins and outs We simply know it as belonging to a class This is the first stage of knowledge it may be called detail less knowledge or indefinite cognition (Darsana) If this stage is not experienced there can be no knowledge of the thing "

Mr J L Jaini in his Gommatsara Jiva Kanda Volume V S B J on page 245 translates Darsana as cognition

In Webster's New International Dictionary it is said that conation is present wherever consciousness tends of itself to pass from one condition to another

Perception is that act or process of the mind which makes known an external object, or the faculty by which one has knowledge through the medium or instrumentality of bodily organs

Conception is defined in Beeton's Dictionary, as the simple apprehension or perception that we have of any object without proceeding to affirm or deny anything regarding it. In this sense the word conception would express very nearly the idea conveyed by the word Darsana as used in Jain Philosophy. In general language however the word conception as defined in Webster's Dictionary signifies that mental act or combination of acts by which an idea or notion is formed of an absent object of perception or of a sensation formerly felt. When we see an object with eyes open, we have a perception of it, when the same object is presented to the mind, with the eyes shut, in idea only, or in memory, we have a conception of it

Cognition is defined as knowledge or certain knowledge as from personal view or experience

Of the words cognition, conation perception and conception conception would best convey the sense of the word Darsana but it would be liable to misinterpretation. Hence conation is the best word we can choose to express the idea. Darsana is that undifferentiated, detail less indefinite hazy first stage of knowledge, which always precedes Jñāna which is detailed, definite certain knowledge of an object

Swabhāva Jñana may be translated as natural knowledge, and Vibhāva Jñana as non natural knowledge

The two are further defined in the next Gāthā

केवलमिन्द्रियरहितं असहाय तं सहावर्णाणं स्ति ।

Right knowledge of four kinds —

Sensitive knowledge (Mati Jñāna)

Scripture knowledge (Shruti Jñāna)

Visual knowledge (Avadhi Jñāna) and Mental Knowledge (Mana pariyaya Jñāna), and

Wrong knowledge of three kinds, beginning with sensitive knowledge

13 And conation attentiveness (is) of two kinds (i e.,) natural (Svabhāva Darśhana), and the opposite of its kind, non natural (Vibhāva Darśhana). That, which is perfect, unassisted by senses and independent, is called Natural

Commentary

Knowledge is the Innate attribute of Soul. It is pure and perfect. But, on account of the operation on mundane soul of knowledge obscuring Karma in varying degrees it is evolved to a greater or less extent. When knowledge obscuring Karma is altogether destroyed the pure and perfect knowledge shines forth. This knowledge is the natural knowledge called Svabhāva Jñāna.

As long as a soul is in its mundane condition and is not altogether free from knowledge-obscuring karma, its knowledge is impure and imperfect and so it is called Vibhāva Jñāna, non natural knowledge.

This Vibhāva Jñāna is of two kinds — Right knowledge and wrong knowledge. Knowledge combined with Right belief is called Right knowledge. Knowledge combined with wrong belief is termed wrong knowledge.

Again Right knowledge has been sub divided into four kinds —

(a) Sensitive knowledge. Knowledge of the self and non self by means of the senses and the mind.

- (b) Scriptural-knowledge : Knowledge derived from the reading or hearing of Scriptures, or through an object known by Sensitive knowledge
- (c) Visual knowledge : Direct knowledge of matter, in varying degrees, having reference to the subject matter (Dravya), space (kshetra), time (Kāla), and quality (Bhāva)
- (d) Mental knowledge : Direct knowledge of another's mental activity about matter

Knowledge, thus, is divided into eight kinds —

- 1 Perfect or Natural knowledge
- 2 Right Sensitive knowledge
- 3 Wrong Sensitive knowledge
- 4 Right Scriptural knowledge
- 5 Wrong Scriptural knowledge
- 6 Right Visual knowledge
- 7 Wrong Visual knowledge
- 8 Mental knowledge

14 Non natural conation is said to be of three kinds •
Ocular (Chakshu Darshana)

Non ocular (Achakshu Darshana) and visual (Avadhi-Darshana)

Modification (is) of two kinds, irrelative (natural, Svabhāva Paryāya) and relative to itself and others (i.e., Non-natural, Vibhāva paryāya)

Commentary.

In Ocular conation (Chakshu Darshana) the object is visible undefinedly

In Non-ocular conation (Achakshu Darshana) the object is undefinedly tangible to the other four senses and to the (quasi sense) mind

In Visual conation (Avadhi Darshana,) there is direct tangibility of material substances just preceding their knowledge, without the assistance of the senses and mind

16-17 Human souls are of two kinds, born in Work-region or in Enjoyment region Hellish souls should be known to be of seven kinds, because of the regions

Sub human souls are said to be of fourteen kinds Celestial souls (are) of four kinds Their detailed account should be known from (the scripture) Loka Vibhāga

Commentary

In the latter half of the 14th and the three gathas following it, have been described the various modifications of the substance, soul Of these modifications the natural one is the modification in the pure and liberated condition of the soul Non natural modifications are impure conditions which arise through the activity of the karmic matter

With reference to the conditions of existence, the Non natural modifications are divided into four kinds —

Human, Hellish, Sub human and Celestial

Human souls are of two kinds —

- (a) Born in Work-Region These souls have to work and to earn their livelihood by following different vocations, such as military, literary, agricultural and commercial
- (b) Born in Enjoyment-Region These souls live in a condition of life where there is all enjoyment, without any work, business or effort

Hellish Souls These souls have to stay in one or other of the seven nether regions according to the effect of their evil Karmas. They always have a very bad thought, pain, sense perception and transformation. There is no enjoyment or pleasure at all. (Vide Tatwarthadhigama Sutra the Sacred Books of the Jainas Volume II Chapter III Sutras 1 to 6)

Sub human Souls Excepting the Human the Hellish and the Celestial souls, all others from the one sensed to the five sensed living beings, are called sub human souls or Tiryancha

They are called Tiryancha from the word Tiryak, crooked, because they adopt crooked thought activities. They are in a very low position as regards their body, enjoyment, etc., have little knowledge, and have multifarious grave demerits. The fourteen kinds of Sub human Souls referred to in Gatha 17 are as follows —

(1) Fine	One sensed	} Each of these seven may be
(2) Gross	One-sensed
(3) „	Two sensed
(4) „	Three sensed
(5) „	Four sensed
(6) Irrational	five sensed
(7) Rational	five sensed
		(1) Developable or
		(2) Non developable
		and they are thus divided into 14 groups

(Vide Gommatsāra Jiva Kānda by Mr J L Jaini Chapter II Gatha 72)

Celestial Souls or Devas They are called Deva, from the root Div to shine, because they always amuse themselves with their heavenly acquisitions and have a shining heavenly constitution, which is technically called Vaikriyika Sharira or Fluid body

These celestial bodies can assume any form they like. Their body has no flesh, blood, or bone, there are no filthy excretions from it, and it is lustrous

These beings form four groups —

- (a) Residential (Bhawan Vāsi)
- (b) Peripatetic (Vyantara)
- (c) Stellar (Jyotishkā)
- (d) Heavenly (Vaimānika)

18 From the practical point of view, it is not a material Karma which causes (the bondage of) material Karma (or experiences its results), but from the (impure) soul which creates (and) experiences through its activities the (effect of) Karma

Commentary.

When we think of soul as a substance apart from the material karmas we find that from this point of view, it causes and experiences its own pure activities, blissfulness, peace, etc. When we think of a substance which is in bondage with Karmas we find that from this point of view, it causes and experiences its own impure activities, anger, pride, greed, pain, pleasure, etc. These impure activities arise in soul, through the operation of material Karmas; they are not the soul's own pure activities. The impure thought activity appears to be attracted towards matter; it is itself attracted towards matter. Thus the soul does not really cause its own impure activities. This is the practical point of view. It is not a material Karma which causes any material Karma which is its own operation and disturbs the soul. It is not a material Karma which causes that the soul experiences pain or pleasure. It is the soul which experiences its own impure activities. This is the practical point of view only. It is not a material Karma which causes any material Karma.

19 From the substance point of view (all) free from the modifications related before, but modification point of view souls are possessed of both (the Natural and Non natural modifications)

Commentary.

Substantial or Dravyārthik point of view is that which relates to the real substance only as it is, and does not take its various modifications into consideration. It is only from this point of view that the soul is said to be free from modifications. The point of view of modification relates only to the modifications of a substance and does not touch the main substance at all. From this point of view the soul is described as possessed of various modifications.

29 From the real point of view an atom is said to be "Matter substance", but from the other (i.e., practical point of view) the term "Matter substance" has been applied to a molecule.

Commentary

In reality an indivisible and the smallest possible particle of matter, i.e. an atom is the real "matter substance". Its attributes are the natural attributes of matter. Such an atom must have five attributes —

(1) any one of the five colours,

(2) any one of the two smells

(3) any one of the five tastes,

(4) any one of the two touches, १८, roughness and smoothness,

(5) any one of the two touches, १९ coldness and heat

As the modification of an atom is independent of all other objects it is called natural modification

When two or more atoms combine together a molecule is formed. A molecule is said to be substance "Matter" from the practical point of view. Attributes and modifications of molecules so formed are known as non natural attributes and modifications. Atoms are never apprehensible by the senses, while molecules may be tangible to the senses

35 36 The atoms of matter are numerable, innumerable and infinite. Verily there are innumerable points of space in "medium of motion," "medium of rest" and in each individual soul.

The same (innumerable number of spatial units are) in the universe, and in the other, i.e., (non universe) (there are) infinite (number of spatial units). There is no extensiveness in Time, therefore it has one spatial unit (only).

Commentary

In Gatha No. 36 six principles were mentioned. Out of those the two, i.e., Soul and Matter, were dealt with in gathas 10 to 29. In Gathas 30-36 the remaining four principles have been explained. They are auxiliary causes to the main functions of Soul and Matter.

Medium of motion, is an essentially auxiliary cause of the motion of Soul and Matter.

Medium of Rest is an essentially auxiliary cause of the static condition of Soul and Matter.

Space is that which gives room to all substances, including Soul and Matter.

Time is the auxiliary cause of bringing about modifications, in all substances, including Soul and Matter.

Out of these six principles space is the biggest, having infinite dimensions all round. Within space there is the universe which contains all the other five substances which cannot exist beyond space.

Of the medium of motion and rest, each is a single, immaterial substance pervading through the whole of the universe.

The units of time (each of which is an immaterial and individual substance) are very closely packed up in the universe. They are innumerable in number.

Soul and Matter being infinite, are found everywhere in the universe, in their various gross or fine forms. In connection with this subject it is necessary to define and explain what a spatial unit (Pradesha) is.

Spatial unit is that part of space which is occupied by the smallest indivisible particle of matter. It is a unit generally employed in measuring the dimensions of substances in the universe. If we measure the universe taking a spatial unit as our measure then we find that there are Innumerable spatial units in it. The medium of Motion and the medium of Rest are co extensive with the universe and have thus a similar number of spatial units. Souls are found in different bodies of different dimensions in their mundane state but still each one of them has the capacity of extending throughout the whole universe. Thus the spatial units of each soul are equal in number to those of the universe, i.e., innumerable. Matter exists in the universe either in the form of atoms or in the form of molecules. Molecules are composed of either numerable or innumerable or infinite number of atoms. The spatial units of matter are thus numerable, innumerable or infinite.

Space substance is infinite in dimensions and has thus an infinite number of spatial units.

All the five substances except Time, occupy more than one spatial unit. They are therefore called the five extensive substances, Panch Astikayas.

The points of time are also innumerable. Each one of these points has its own separate and independent existence. Though each one of them is connected with another it is never combined with it. There are innumerable spatial units in the universe so the number of points of time as well is innumerable. As each point of time occupies only one spatial unit, and not more than one in any case, it is called non extensive substance Akāya-Dravya.

In the universe there are only innumerable spatial units, how then it may be asked can it give space to an infinite number of atoms and molecules. The explanation is simple. The material atoms possess the capacity of compressing an infinite number of themselves into one molecule, which may not occupy more than one spatial unit. Take the case of light. The space in a room may be occupied by the light of one lamp and also by the light of as many lamps as may be placed there.

In Gatha 31 Past time is equal to numerable winks multiplied by total number of liberated souls.

As a matter of fact 608 mundane souls are liberated within every period of 6 months and 8 instants. This process has been going on continuously and uniformly since eternity. If we reduce 6 months and 8 instants into winks and divide by 608, we obtain the average time for one soul to obtain liberation i.e., numerable winks. The number of winks thus obtained is constant and does not vary. The number of past liberated souls is infinite and as shown above it increases by 608 within the period of every 6 months.

and 8 instants. Thus we arrive at the conclusion that the length of past time is infinite and it increases by the constant number of winks (vide Gommatasara by Mr J L Jaini, Jiva Kanda Gatha 578)

49 From the practical point of view, all mundane souls have been described as possessing all the aforesaid conditions, but from the pure, real point of view they also (are) of the same nature as liberated souls

Commentary

The universe is full of souls They are of two kinds —
Liberated and Mundane

Liberated souls are those which are quite free from karmic dirt and have no possibility of ever appearing again in the conditions, which arise from the bondage of the karmic matter with the soul They are all powerful, all knowing all-perceiving, all-blissful, and absorbed in their own real and pure nature These liberated souls always maintain their individual existence and abide at the topmost of the universe

Mundane souls are those souls which are in bondage of karmic matter It is on account of this matter that they exist in the universe, in different conditions of life and experience innumerable kinds of pain and pleasure These souls are so avaricious, that their worldly wants are never satisfied Whatever pleasures they enjoy, are sensual so they cannot satisfy their desires It is a matter of daily experience that the more the desires of a mundane soul are satisfied, the more they are multiplied in every direction On one side these souls experience the fruits of their past karmas, which shed off after fruition on the other side, at the same time, they bind fresh good or evil karmas on account of their multifarious impure thought activities This process has been going on since eternity and will go on as long as the soul does not identify and realise itself and does not adopt proper measures to walk on the path of liberation It is due to these simultaneous operations of fruition and bondage that souls transmigrate from one condition of life to the other

It should be noted that there are 8 main kinds of Karmas —

- (a) Knowledge obscuring Karma (Jñānāvarniya Karma) is that matter which obscures the knowledge attribute of the soul
- (b) Conation obscuring Karma (Darshanāvarniya Karma) is that matter which obscures the conation attribute of the soul
- (c) Feeling Karma (Vedaniya Karma) is that Karma, by the operation of which mundane souls come in contact with agreeable or disagreeable objects which in their turn cause the feelings of pleasure or pain in the Soul according to their various degrees of attachment and aversion therein

- (d) Deluding Karma (Mohaniya Karma) is that karma which obscures the attributes of right belief and right conduct of the soul
- (e) Age karma (Ayu Karma) is that karma which causes and determines the sojourn of a soul into a particular body
- (f) Body making Karma (Nāma Karma) is that karma the operation of which causes condition of existence, formation of different kinds of bodies and the change from one to another condition of existence
- (g) Family determining Karma (Gotra Karma) is that karma by operation of which a soul is to take birth in a high or a low family
- (h) Obstructive karma (antarāya karma) is that karma which obscures the infinite power of the soul

Out of these 8 karmas Nos (a), (b) (d) and (h) are known as the destructive (ghātiya) karmas because they destroy the manifestation of the real and essential attributes of the soul. The manifestation of these attributes in mundane souls varies inversely to the proportionate decrease of the forces of these four destructive karmas.

The remaining four i.e. (c), (e), (f) and (g) are called non-destructive karmas (Aghātiya Karmas). They are so called because they do not obscure the real attributes of the soul but effect only the external environments of the soul. As mundane souls are in bondage of these 8 karmas they forget their real nature and never realise their true self and wander in different conditions of existence, distressed, discontent and yearning for sensual pleasures.

In order to avoid all this worry and to obtain real and eternal peace and happiness it is necessary to get rid of the filth of these karmas.

Thus it is necessary for a mundane soul longing for eternal happiness and salvation that it should identify and realise itself. Identification means knowing the true nature of itself and the karmic matter, which are two substances entirely different from each other.

Real point of view is that which deals only with the true and pure aspect of a substance irrespective of its relation with other substances.

Practical point of view is that which deals with a substance, having regard to its relations with other substances.

When we look at mundane souls from the practical point of view, various kinds of conditions and modifications are found in them, but when we think of them from the real point of view, we find that there is no distinction at all between them and the liberated souls, i.e., the mundane souls are in reality as free as the liberated souls from all these conditions which arise from, and depend upon the bondage of karmic matter with soul. Whenever any mundane soul taking the real point of view into consideration identifies itself as quite free and separate from matter, and realises itself as such passions decrease and peacefulness increases. By this process of self-identification and self realisation, the past karmas already in bondage with the soul shed off without fruition and before due time, and the inflow and bondage of fresh karmas gradually stop. Thus the soul following this path gradually improves all round and sometime is able to ultimately, free itself from these worldly conditions and itself becomes pure and perfect (Siddha Parmātmā)

Gatha 39 Impure thought activities, Svabhava Sthana here means all the thought activities of soul, except the real and the pure thought activities

- Gatha 40
- 1 Stages of Duration bondage Sthiti bandha-sthāna
 - 2 Stages of Karmic nature, Prakriti Sthāna
 - 3 Degrees of molecular bondage Pradesha Sthāna
 - 4 Degrees of operation of karmas, Anubhaga Sthāna

Bondage of karma is of 4 kinds having reference to—

- 1 Prakriti, the nature of the karmic matter, whether it is knowledge-obscuring or conation obscuring etc
- 2 Sthiti the duration of the bondage, within which period they will gradually shed off
- 3 Anubhāga, the mildness or intensity of fruition, at its maturity within its duration
- 4 Pradesha the quantity of the karmic molecules drawn towards, and bound to the soul

The first and fourth, i.e., the Prakriti and Pradesha are determined by soul vibrations caused by their actions of mind, body and speech

Thus the nature and the quantity of the karmic molecules bound to the soul, vary according to the quality and intensity of the soul vibrations and so there are different stages of karmic nature (Prakriti Sthāna) and different degrees of the molecular bondage (Pradesha Sthāna)

The remaining two i.e., the "Duration" and the fruition of karmic bondage are determined by passions, anger, pride, deceit and greed, etc

Thus the duration and fruition of karmic molecules bound to the soul vary according to the mildness or intensity of the passions and so there are different stages of duration bondage (sthiti bandha Sthāna) and various grades of fruition bondage (Anubhāga Sthāna)

Udaya Sthāna When the karmic molecules already bound to the soul come into operation, they manifest their mild or strong fruition i.e., the effect. So there are different degrees of the operation of the karmas (Udaya sthāna) as well

Gatha 41 Thought activities of soul caused by operation of Karmas are of four kinds —

1 (Aupashamika Bhāva) subsidentia thought activity This arises by the subsidence of the deluding (Mohanīya) karmic matter

2 Destructive thought activity (Kshāyika Bhāva) It arises from the destruction of any of the four destructive (Ghatīya) karmas

3 Destructive subsidentia thought activity (Kshayopashamika Bhāva) It arises by the partial destruction, partial subsidence and partial operation of any of the destructive karmas

4 Operative thought activity (Audayika Bhāva) It arises by the operation of any of the karmas

In reality, the thought activities of a soul are innumerable, so naturally there are various gradations in all the above mentioned thought activities according to the subsidence, destruction and operation, etc., of the Karmas

Gatha 42 1 Nuclei (yonī) is the place whereto the mundane souls transmigrate after leaving the previous body. The process of formation and development of the new external body begins there. Nuclei are of various kinds, according to their nature, structure, etc.

They are eighty-four lakhs in number

2 Physique (Kula) means natural constitution Its characteristics vary according to the kind of the material molecules of which the external bodies are made The total number of the kinds of physique is 1975,000,000 000 00

Soul-classes (Jiva Samasa)

Those common characteristics, by which mundane souls, though of many distinctions and kinds, may be distinguished by being collected into groups, are called soul classes

Their main divisions are 11 which are given in commentary Gatha 15 17

Soul quests (Marganā) are those conditions, forms and qualities, etc by means of which or amongst which souls are searched for They are fourteen in number as follows —

- 1 Condition of existence (Gati)
- 2 Senses (Indriya)
- 3 Embodiment (Kāya)
- 4 Vigoratory activities (Yoga)
- 5 Sex inclinations (Veda)
- 6 Passions (Kashāya)
- 7 Knowledge (Jñāna)
- 8 Control (Samyama)
- 9 Conation (Darshana)
- 10 Thought paint (Leshyā)
- 11 Liberableness (Bhavyatva)
- 12 Right belief (Samyaktva)
- 13 Rationality (Sanjñatva)
- 14 Assimilation (Āhāra)

55 Right conduct from the practical point of view, ■ to practise austerities from the practical stand point, while Right Conduct from the real point of view is to observe austerities from the real stand point

Commentary

Right belief Right knowledge together with Right Conduct were described as the path of liberation in Gatha 3

Belief in order to be called Right Belief must be free from perversity and falsity of motive Real motive of every mundane soul bent upon spiritual advancement ■ the realization of the self and the attainment of true and perfect peace freedom and happiness All other motives which do not lead towards this goal but rather mislead the soul towards worldly pleasures, which are in reality the causes of misery are false and perverse It is also necessary that right belief should be free from the defects of wavering impurity and non steadfastness In wavering condition of right belief its substance remains quite sound but only the form is slightly disturbed as the surface of an ocean ■ disturbed by waves to illustrate which is generally quoted the example of a person who worships Shanti Natha in preference to the other Tirthankaras for acquiring peace plenty and comfort

Impurity here implies the following five defects --

(a) Doubt (Shanká), (b) Desire of sense pleasures (Kamkshá), (c) Disgust (Vichikitsá), (d) admiration of wrong believers (Anyadrashti samstava)

Non steadfastness —This condition arises when right belief is not quite fixed in true nature of things. For example worshipping in one's own temple in preference to the temple built by others. A person who has a steadfast right belief knows that it does not make the slightest difference whether you worship in your temple or in one built by your neighbour.

The external cause of right belief is to study the Jaina Scriptures and to attend upon those who know them fully well with the object of understanding the principles from them. The internal cause of right belief is the subsidence or destructive subsidence or destruction of the right belief deluding karma and of the four error feeding (anantanubandhi) passions. (For details see Gatha 26 Gomma sara Jiva Kanda by Mr J L Jain S B J Vol V)

Right knowledge should always be free from doubt perversity and indifference. A soul possessing right knowledge has clear and correct knowledge of the essential principles and has the capacity of discrimination between what is worth renouncing and what is worth realising.

Along with these two i.e. right belief and right knowledge, right conduct is an essential factor for the attainment of liberation, because neither any one of the three nor any two of the three can constitute the path of liberation. Right conduct has been described here as being of two kinds. When austerities etc., are practised from the practical point of view, with the aim of attaining real right conduct i.e. self absorption they are said to be practical right conduct. Being absorbed in one's own true nature is the real austerity and the same is the real right conduct.

CHAPTER IV

Practical Right Conduct (Vyavahāra Charitra)

70 (From the real point of view) refraining from bodily movements, non attachment to the body, restraint of body or renunciation of causing injury, etc., is called control of body

Commentary

From the real point of view self realisation is the path to liberation but in order to reach the stage of self realisation it is necessary that certain rules of conduct should be followed and practised. These rules are divided into (1) Laymen's rules of conduct, and (2)

saints' rules of conduct The rules of conduct to be observed by a layman, only serve as a means to the partial control of his passions. If he wants to make further progress and attain perfection, he must adopt the rules of conduct laid down for saints These rules practically consist in the renunciation of all worldly possessions and occupations

The practical right conduct to be observed by saints is of 13 kinds —

Five vows —

- 1 Vow of non injury
- 2 Vow of truth
- 3 Vow of non stealing
- 4 Vow of chastity
- 5 Vow of possessionlessness

The saints have to observe these rules fully, without any blemish or transgression so that their thought activities may remain pure and undisturbed, and they may be able to apply themselves to self realisation

- 6 Carefulness in walking
- 7 Carefulness in speaking
- 8 Carefulness in eating
- 9 Carefulness in lifting up and laying down
- 10 Carefulness in excreting

Three kinds of control —

- 11 Control of mind
- 12 Control of speech
- 13 Control of body

71 Worshipful Lords (Arhats) are those who are entirely free from all the (four) destrutive Karmas, and are possessed of the highest attributes, omniscience, etc , and are crowned with the thirty four extraordinary glories, (Atishaya)

Commentary

When a soul, following the rules of conduct laid down for the saints as given in previous Gāthās realises the self and advances on till it reaches the 13th spiritual stage of vibratory omniscient (Sayoga Kevali), it is then that the soul is called Arhat or the Worshipful Lord. In this stage the soul is still in the physical body and reveals the Truth

75 Those who are free from all (worldly) occupations, are always deeply absorbed in four kinds of contemplation (Ārīdhana) and are possessionless and delusionless, are (said) to be the Saints (Sādhus)

Commentary

According to Jaina Philosophy there are 14 spiritual stages of thought activities, which a soul, desirous of being liberated and of attaining perfection has to pass through. The first stage is of wrong belief, the second and third are the intervening progressive stages of thought activities between wrong belief, and right belief of the 4th stage.

A soul which enters the 4th stage is said to have reached the thresh hold of liberation. At this stage the soul has got only right belief. As soon as that soul begins to follow the practical vows of a layman, it is said to enter the 5th stage. Again when this very soul, rising higher up renounces the world and observes the vows fully and wholly, it is said to have entered the 6th and 7th stages, where it is known as a saint. While a saint remains in these two stages and improves his qualifications so that he has the capacity of controlling the whole order of saints and supervises their general conduct, he is said to be the Head of the order of saints or an Āchārya, and as such he follows and practises the five kinds of conduct as given in Gatha 73.

They are as follows —

- (a) Conduct of right belief (Darshanāchāra) performance of all those duties which keep right belief firm.
- (b) Conduct of knowledge (Jñānāchāra) minute and detailed study of the scriptures with the view of increasing right knowledge.
- (c) Conduct of observing saintly character (Chāritra āchāra). Thirteen kinds of rules of conduct have been described in Gāthās 56-70.

Observing those rules regularly and flawlessly with the idea of realising the self is called Chāritrāchāra

(d) Conduct of austerities (Tapāchāra) is the proper and regular observance of twelve kinds of austerities (Tapas) as fasting etc (vide Tatwārthā-dhigama Sutra, Chapter IX Sutras 19 20)

(e) Conduct of soul force (Viryāchāra) means the development of soul force and repulsion of the karmic forces with the view of attaining liberation.

An Achārya, as defined above, himself practises and observes all the above mentioned five kinds of conduct, and instructs the saints of his order to do the same. Any saint of the order who is in the 6th and the 7th stages is well versed in Jaina Scriptures and is capable of teaching and instructing other saints of the order, is called the preceptor (Upādhyāya)

All other saints who are neither Achāryas nor Upādhyāyas are known as Sādhus. They may be in any spiritual stage from the 6th to the 12th stages where delusion is absolutely destroyed. From the 8th to the 12th, all are the progressive stages of meditation. In these stages a saint is deeply absorbed in meditation and self-realisation and there it is impracticable for him to observe and fulfil the main and special duties of an Achārya or an Upādhyāya.

A saint, after destroying the Delusion Karma (Mohaniya), reaches the 12th stage and there finally destroys the three remaining destructive Karmas, i.e. knowledge-obscuring, emotion obscuring and obstructive karmas by dint of meditation and self-realisation. Then he enters the 13th stage of Vibratory Omniscient (Sayoga-Jina) where he is known as Arhat or the Worshipful Lord. The Worshipful Lord proclaims Truth to the world. When the same soul or the Worshipful Lord is about to be entirely freed from karmas and his vibratory activity has ceased. He is said to have entered the 14th stage of Non vibrating omniscient Lord (Ayogi Jina). During the very short period of this stage the soul destroys the remaining four Non destructive Karmas i.e. feeling (Vedanīya) body making karmas (Nāma), family determining (Gotra) and age (Āyu) Karmas. Then the soul is finally free from all the Karmas and has accomplished all that was to be accomplished. Such a soul is known as a Perfect Soul (Siddha). From the above we note that a soul when it observes and follows the 13th rule of conduct, remains either in the condition of an Achārya, Upādhyāya or a Sādhu and the attainment of the condition of being an Arhat or a Siddha is an outcome of the observance of the rules of Right Conduct The Arhat and the Āchārya, Upādhyāya and Sādhu are said to be Mahān Ātmās (Great souls) All the above five i.e., the Arhats, Siddhas, Āchāryas Upādhyāyas, and Sādhus are called the five supreme Dignitaries (Pancha Parmeshthi) It is only these five Dignitaries, who are worshipped by the Jainas in general

Real Right Conduct is nothing else but self realisation. All the modifications and impure thought activities which do not belong to a pure soul arise out of the operation of material karmas which are in bondage with a mundane soul. In reality these are not the natural aspects of the soul hence for attainment of self realisation a soul should think of itself again and again as quite free from, and unconcerned with any one of them. These impure thought-activities, etc., arise out of karmic matter, soul is not, in reality the doer of any one of them. This process of meditation is known as self analysis (Bhed Vijnāna) and is indispensable for the practice of self realisation

94 He, who having understood the modes of repentance as related in the scriptures known by the name of "Pratikramana Sutra" meditates upon it, is then said to have repentance (from the practical point of view).

Commentary

In Jaina Scriptures the following six essential duties have been prescribed for a saint —

- 1 Repentance (Pratikramana)
- 2 Renunciation (Pratyākhyāna)
- 3 Praising the Worshipful Lords (Stuti)
- 4 Obeisance to the Worshipful Lords (Vandanā)
- 5 Practising of equanimity, (Sāmāyika)
- 6 Relinquishment of bodily attachment (Kāyotsarga)

From the practical point of view, a saint is said to make repentance, when he recounts his sins and transgressions committed during the performance of his daily routine and makes penance for them in accordance with rules laid down in the scripture called "Pratikramana Sutra". This kind of repentance is of a lower degree compared to the repentance described in Gathas 83 to 90 from the real point of view. Practical repentance is only a step to reach the real repentance which consists in directing the pure thought activity of soul towards the concentration and realisation of the pure self. This kind of repentance causes the shedding of Karmas in a greater number and quantity than practical repentance, and has been termed Real repentance. Thus for a saint, bent upon attaining liberation, it is essential that he should regard Real repentance as the direct cause of liberation and should treat practical repentance only as an auxiliary cause to Real repentance.

निष्कषायस्य दान्तस्य शूरस्य व्यवसायिनः ।

संसारभयभीतस्य प्रत्याख्यानं सुखं भवेत् ॥ १०४ ॥

105 He, who is free from passions, has controlled his senses and is brave enterprising and afraid of birth and re-birth (is said) to practice happy renunciation

एवं भेदव्भासं जो कुर्वइ जीवकर्मणो शिचं ।

एव भेदाभ्यास यः करोति जीवकर्मणो नित्यम् ।

प्रत्याख्यानं शक्नोति धर्तुं स सयतो नियमात् ॥ १०६ ॥

106 Thus, the saint who is constantly engaged in distinguishing between soul and material karmas, can regularly pursue renunciation with certainty

Commentary.

Practical Pratyākhyāna relates only to the avoidance of those thought activities and actions which are likely to arise in a mundane soul in future and cause disturbance in the observance of vows without transgressions and in the performance of essential duties. Renunciation (Pratyākhyāna) thus signifies a resolution to avoid particular actions and thought activities in future. This has been dealt with in gāthās 101-106. This kind of renunciation, although a great check for fresh bondage of evil Karmas is not by itself pure renunciation. It is only an auxiliary cause to the practice of real renunciation which is self absorption. In real renunciation the soul takes shelter in the pure nature of its own self, and is not allowed to be obsessed by any other idea which does not relate to itself. In this kind of renunciation, a saint realises himself to be all knowing all-powerful, and all blissful, and thinks that there is no distinction whatsoever between his soul and a perfect and liberated soul. When he is thus absorbed in his own self, he himself is really Right Belief, Right Knowledge Right Conduct Right Renunciation, and pure conscious thought-activity, all personified.

This real renunciation is described in gāthās 95-100. In gāthā 103 the author has referred to the practice of equanimity (Sāmāyika) in three ways, which are the following —

(a) Lowest way (Jaghanya) In this stage a saint resorts to an undisturbed solitude, and calmly and cheerfully

withdraws all his thought activities leading to mental disturbance, and meditates upon practical Right Belief, Right Knowledge, and Right Conduct For illustration, he thinks of the nature of the seven principles (tattvas) and twelve kinds of meditation (Bhāvanā), etc This way of meditation serves only as a stepping stone to the next higher way

(b) Middle way (Madhyama) In this stage, the saint withdraws his thought activities from all the external objects, and is mainly concerned with different aspects and attributes of soul itself It is a kind of meditation only, and a stepping stone to the highest way

(c) Highest way (Uttama) In this stage the saint withdraws his thought activities from all sorts of wavering contemplations about soul, and becomes entirely and steadfastly absorbed in his own self It is self-realisation and in this condition he enjoys true peace and happiness It is pure thought activity, without any sort of attachment or aversion, and so causes shedding off of past karmas in a large quantity It is real equanimity and it alone is real renunciation

CHAPTER VII.

Commentary

This chapter confession (Ālochanā), has been dealt with from the real point of view only

Confession (Ālochanā) from the practical point of view means full and voluntary acknowledgment of one's own faults and transgressions to the Head of the order of saints. It is not pure, but good thought activity. It is only an auxiliary cause to the real confession. It can not destroy karmas in as great a number and quantity as the real and pure confession does. Realisation of one's own soul, as quite free from all foreign and impure thought activities, is the real confession. In this condition, all the four kinds of confession as given in gāthā 108, are observed simultaneously. Withdrawal of thought-activity from a fault or defect which a saint has to acknowledge before the Head of the order is the real confession, (Ālochanā) and it exists when he is absorbed in his own pure self. At the same time, his pure thought activity causes the shedding off, of karmas which were bound to his soul on account of the defects of transgression, which he has to acknowledge before the Head of the order, and of other karmas previously accumulated. This process is known as the eradication of the karmas (Alunchhana). In the condition of self absorption it is self evident that there can be no attachment or aversion of any kind in the mind of a saint, which may mar the natural beauty of his soul. That is, why it is said that real confession includes non deformity, (Avikṛitī Karana)

Again it is quite apparent that in self realisation soul is practically free from passions and desires such as lust, pride, anger, etc. So purity of thought (Bhāva Shuddhi) also exists simultaneously with the other three in real confession. The main object of the author is clearly to emphasise that a saint should not rest content, only with practical confession, but if he wants to make any real spiritual progress, he should practice real confession, which only is the cause of liberation from karmic bondage

EXPIATION (PRĀYASHCHITTA)

113 Thought activity of observing (five) vows, (five kinds of) carefulness, character and self control, or attentiveness to the restraint of senses, is expiation (Prāyashchitta) It should be practised constantly

114 Being engaged, in the contemplation of destroying (or subsiding) etc, one's own (impure) thought activities, anger, etc, as well as, meditation upon the attributes of one's own soul, is said to be expiation from the real point of view

116, A saint who is constantly absorbed in the supreme knowledge, comprehension or consciousness of his own soul, (is said to) have expiation

117. What more need be said, know the complete observance of the best austerities by great saints to be expiation alone. It is the cause of destruction of various karmas (in larger number and quantity)

118 Group of meritorious and demeritorious karmic molecules accumulated (by a soul), during its infinite (number of previous) lives, is destroyed by the observance of austerities, so (practising) austerities (is) expiation

119 A soul, with the thought activity of being under the shelter of its own (true) nature is capable of renouncing all (other foreign) thought activities. So self concentration is the complete (expiation)

120 He, who avoiding good and bad forms of speech, and being free from (impure) thought activities, such as attachment, etc., meditates upon his own soul, (is said), as a matter of fact, to observe the rule (of expiation)

कायादिपरद्रव्ये स्थिरभाव परिहरित्वात्मानम् ।

तस्य भवेत्तन्तस्सर्गो यो ध्यायति निर्विरूपेण ॥ १२१ ॥

121 He, who discarding the idea of the durability of other objects, such as body, etc. meditates upon his own soul, with concentrated mind (is said) to have a "withdrawal of attachment from body" (Kāyotsarga) (It is also expiation)

Commentary

Though a saint generally tries his best to observe his vows and follow his daily routine regularly and cautiously still it some times, happens that on account of the operation of some conduct deluding karmas, his thoughts and actions fall short of the requisite standard. Thus a slight defect or flaw appears in the observance of his saintly conduct and on account of this demeritorious karmas are bound to his soul. In order to counter balance or reduce the effect of these karmas so bound, he is required to resort to the practice of expiation.

The word Prāyashchitta means purification of one's soul from sins committed. A saint whenever any transgression is committed by him, goes to the head of his order and frankly acknowledges his faults before him, and whatever punishment is proposed by him by way of atonement, he gladly accepts and complies with the orders with proper care and caution. This is called practical expiation.

After all, though it is good, yet it is not quite pure thought activity. As pure thought activity alone is the cause of shedding off of karmas in large number and quantity, hence purity of thought-activity only is the real expiation.

Passions are the main causes of karmic bondage. As long as a saint is even slightly inclined towards any passion he is sure to commit sin. Therefore it is necessary for him to conquer anger with forgiveness, pride with humility, deceit with straightforwardness, and greed with contentment. Having thus subdued the passions, he should meditate upon the real attributes of his own self and try to realise his real nature. When he is thus absorbed in his self without any sort of attachment or aversion, and free from all sorts of activities of mind, body and speech he is only then possessed of quite pure thought activity. It is the stage of self concentration which is the best of all austerities. This is the only real expiation.

133 He, who always practises concentration rightness or pure (is said to have) steadfast equanimity, according to the preaching of the omniscient

Commentary

All self control, vows and austerities, etc., are practised chiefly with the object of developing the supreme equanimity

We find that all living beings in the universe and they exist in different forms and conditions according to the various operations of their respective karma. Even those people engaged in different pursuits, deal with the objects of their living beings, they generally act as their individual and personal interests guide them. A person is attached to them, whether animate or inanimate, which appear to him to be agreeable to his senses and mind, and he takes special care to preserve them. He is averely inclined towards those objects which in any way hamper his enjoyment of sensual pleasures. Persons who are friends even to such an extent that he identifies his interests with theirs. Those who oppose him, are considered as enemies and at times to such an extent that he attempts to remove them.

When a person looks upon other living beings from the real stand point, he sees that as far as their pure nature and attributes are concerned they all are Perfect and Liberated Souls, and then he has no attachment for some and aversion to others. His thought-activities then remain perfectly even and tranquil.

A saint working for the liberation of his soul, always tries not to be disturbed by any worldly objects animate or inanimate

139 Natural thought activity (of a saint) who, having given up perverse motive, contemplates upon the principles, enunciated by the Conquerors, is meditation.

140 The greatest Conquerors, Rishabha and others being thus absorbed in supreme devotion for self meditation have attained the perfect bliss of liberation, therefore practice supreme devotion for self meditation.

Commentary

Devotion includes praising (stuti) of and obeisance (Bandana) to the Worshipful Lords the two out of the six essential daily duties of a saint. Devotion should always be free from any perverse motive, i.e., one should not expect any worldly gain as a fruit of devotion, rather he should look upon it only as a means to the purification of thought activities, which lead to self realisation and liberation.

It is necessary that one should first acquaint himself fully with the various attributes of those whom he worships and then constantly meditate upon them. This kind of devotion is not pure and real devotion. It is only a righteous thought activity and serves only as an auxiliary cause to the practice of real and supreme devotion.

In practising real devotion one has to renounce all foreign and impure thought activities, such as attachment, aversion, etc., and keeping the real nature of the principles enunciated by the Conquerors, in his mind as bases of contemplation is absorbed in one's own pure self, with the motive of attaining liberation.

CHAPTER XI

142 He, who does not depend (upon others) is called avasha (Independent) The action of an Avasha should be known to be Avashyaka (Independent action) This is the reason, the way and the (Ideal, i.e.,) liberation from material bodies It is the derivation (Nirukti) (of the word Avashyaka)

155 There are various kinds of (mundane) souls, karmic bondages are of multifarious varieties, and Labdhis (Acquisitions of knowledge, etc.) are of different kinds Therefore, one should avoid entering into (mere) verbal controversies with one's own co religionists or those professing other faith

158 It is, from the practical point of view only, that the Omniscient Lord, perceives and knows all, from the real stand point, the Omniscient perceives and knows his own soul only

Commentary

In the Commentary under Chapter V, it has been explained that there are six essential daily duties prescribed for a saint. These are called the "Shatāvashyaka Karma" of a saint. In this respect the Learned Author, has mainly dealt with these duties from the real point of view

Vide Ch. V for Pratikamana

" Ch. VI for Pratyākhyāna

" Ch. IX for Sāmāyika

" Ch. VIII for Kāyotsarga

The word Avashyaka which included the six essential duties detailed in Chapters V, VI, VII, IX, X, etc., Chapter been used in its etymological sense. The word Āvashyaka has been derived from Avasha which means independent; thus the action of an independent saint is called an Āvashyaka karma, or independent action.

A really true and independent saint must refrain from all good and bad thought-activities. At the same time it is necessary for him not to engage himself in the flickering thought activities concerning various attributes and modifications of all the six substances (Dravyas). He should devote his whole attention to the realisation of the pure nature of his Own Self. It is only in this condition of self absorption, that a saint is said to perform Āvashyaka Karma (Independent Action).

If a saint or a layman merely observes his respective duties and vows, without having self absorption as his real aim, he falls far short of the standard and cannot be called the real follower of the path of the Conquerors. He is known as a Bahir-Ātma or External Soul, while a saint or a layman who believes in this Āvashyaka Karma of self absorption and tries to work up to that and does not restrict himself merely to the observance of external formalities, is called an Antar Ātmā, Internal Soul.

The seeker after truth should first scrutinise minutely and carefully the principles laid down in the Scriptures by the Conquerors and being convinced of their truth he should follow them calmly and peacefully and should avoid all verbal wrangles or controversies with his own co religionists as well as with those professing other faiths. Seekers after liberation should thus follow in the footsteps of their ancient great spiritual Leaders who by practising Āvashyaka or independence have attained Nirvana.

161 If knowledge illuminates others only, then it means that conation (which is said to know soul only) is different from knowledge, thus it is said that conation has no concern with other objects and perfect knowledge On account of the total destruction of knowledge-obscuring and conation-obscuring karmas both knowledge and conation exist and work simultaneously just as light and heat exist in the sun and work simultaneously In the case of souls, who have not attained omniscience conation precedes knowledge, both do not work simultaneously Natural knowledge and natural conation as described in Gathas II and III respectively, the innate attributes of a soul, in other words they are the perfect knowledge and perfect conation as found existing and working simultaneously in the omniscients.

In the pure and perfect conation and knowledge of the omniscients all knowable objects are reflected, without any effort whatsoever, on the part of the omniscient souls Thus when it is said, that from the real point of view, the omniscient soul knows the self only, it means that the soul knows the self together with the reflection of all the objects in the Universe and Non universe simultaneously It is only a mode of expression to say, that from the real stand point the omniscients know the self alone As practical point of view deals with a substance, having regard to its relation with other substances wherefore it is also quite true to say that from the practical point of view the omniscients know all It is merely another mode of expression All includes the self as well Thus from whatever point of view we consider, we arrive at the conclusion that an omniscient soul knows the self and all other substances simultaneously

Soul is a substance, and knowledge and conation are its two innate attributes Substance is nothing else but another name given to the sum total of its attributes and modifications A substance cannot function independently whatever is done by it, is done solely by virtue of its attributes and modifications

When one says that soul conates and knows the self and all other substances, it has to be admitted that perfect conation and perfect knowledge also conate and know the self and all other substances at the same time

Every luminous substance illuminates both itself and all other objects within its range Conation and knowledge illuminate both themselves and all other objects

If knowledge be assumed as not knowing the soul, then it will never be possible for any one to know the soul and it will be sheer nonsense to talk of soul, self knowledge, self realisation and self-

Commentary

A perfect liberated soul is absolutely free from all sorts of impurities and it shines forth in its true nature even when a soul is in the position of an Arhat, though it is still in bondage with the four non-destructive (Aghātiya) karmas but it is free from all the four destructive karmas, which obscured its real attributes. As long as the non destructive karmas are not exhausted the soul of the Lord Arhat remains in a highly refined physical body (Parama audārika sharīra). The Omniscient Lords being possessed of vibratory activities, move about and preach Truth to the world.

Both the Siddhas and the Arhats are possessed of pure conscious attentiveness (Shuddha Upyoga), which includes both perfect cona-on and perfect knowledge On account of the total destruction of the knowledge-obscuring and conation-obscuring karmas both knowledge and conation exist and work simultaneously, just as light and heat exist in the sun and work simultaneously In the case of souls who have not attained omniscience, conation precedes knowledge, both do not work simultaneously Natural knowledge and natural conation, as described in Gathas 11 and 13 respectively, are the innate attributes of a soul, in other words they are the perfect knowledge and perfect conation as found existing and working simultaneously in the omniscients

In the pure and perfect conation and knowledge of the omniscients, all knowable objects are reflected, without any effort, whatsoever, on the part of the omniscient souls Thus when it is said that from the real point of view, the omniscient soul knows the self only, it means that the soul knows the self together with the reflection of all the objects in the Universe and Non universe simultaneously It is only a mode of expression to say, that from the real stand point the omniscients know the self alone As practical point of view deals with a substance, having regard to its relation with other substances wherefore it is also quite true to say that from the practical point of view, the omniscients know all It is merely another mode of expression All includes the self as well Thus from whatever point of view we consider, we arrive at the conclusion that an omniscient soul knows the self and all other substances simultaneously

Soul is a substance and knowledge and conation are its two innate attributes Substance is nothing else but another name given to the sum total of its attributes and modifications A substance cannot function independently, whatever is done by it is done solely by virtue of its attributes and modifications

When one says that soul conates and knows the self and other substances, it has to be admitted that perfect conation and perfect knowledge also conate and know the self and all other substances at the same time

Every luminous substance illuminates both itself and all other objects within its range Conation and knowledge also know themselves and all other objects

If knowledge be assumed as not knowing itself, it will never be possible for any one to know the self and all other substances nonsense to talk of soul, self knowledge and self-concentration. In other words, path to liberation and liberation itself will become quite meaningless.

In Gatha 171, it has been laid down that neither knowledge can exist without soul nor can there be a soul without knowledge. It is so; because knowledge being the attribute of the soul, it can never exist independently. If it is said that knowledge does not know the self, then it means that it is quite separate from soul, which it is not. Therefore knowledge knows both the soul as well as all other objects.

It is a well known principle of Jainism that delusion, attachment and aversion, etc., are the main causes of karmic bondage with the soul. The Omniscient Lord having already destroyed the deluding karma (Mohaniva), it is entirely impossible that any impure thought activity such as desire, etc., should arise in Him. Owing to the destruction of the knowledge and conation obscuring karma, and attainment of perfect knowledge and conation, every knowable object is automatically revealed to Him, and nothing remains which he may desire to know. The action of a vibratory omniscient, (Sayoga Kevah) in moving about, and preaching Truth, etc., are not volitional; they are due to the operation of the remaining four non-destructive karmas. They are in a way like the reflex actions of the nervous system.

When the Lord Arhat, on the termination of His age karmas destroys all the remaining karmas, he is absolutely liberated from all the material bodies, fine or gross. He is pure, perfect independent, free from rebirth, all blissful, has accomplished all that was to be accomplished and as such, ascends directly upwards by force of nature and there abides at the summit of the Universe. He is then called a Siddha (a perfect liberated soul). This condition of a Siddha is known as Nirvana. The word Nirvana according to the Jaina doctrine means extinguishment of all foreign thought activities, desire, attachment, aversion etc., and the attainment of the soul's own pure individuality together with all its pure and natural attributes and modifications.
